A Note From Our CEO:

The year 2020 will always be one of those dates that will live in infamy.

Where were you during the COVID-19 pandemic... How did you and your family survive... How many Zoom calls did you do during the day? We have seen hardships, we have experienced loss, and we have lived through the COVID-19 pandemic together.

Despite this unprecedented crisis, we have seen our community stand up and stand together to battle hunger not seen since the Great Depression; to overcome massive disruptions in our local and state economy; and as a food bank, experience endless challenges to our supply chain and distribution systems.

In these moments, the Community Food Bank of Central Alabama has been on the front lines like never before – with courage, despite fears about safety and challenging personal demands. Our staff, our board members and volunteers, and our partners stood tall to meet the surge in food insecurity across our 12-county footprint. We have pushed to increase food distributions to the highest amount in our history. Our team of food bankers and our network of partner agencies responded with resilience and adaptability, leveraging our increased capacity to provide more food to more people than we ever have before.

Behind our team of front-line workers, YOU, our donors, friends and supporters have enabled the Community Food Bank of Central Alabama to step up as a community pillar. Together, we have fed more people, built new partnerships, and expanded our capabilities in the midst of this crisis. Together, we have met the challenges of 2020, and together, we will keep this momentum into the next year... a year that promises more of the same, with an estimated 42 million Americans who will experience food insecurity because of the continuing economic fallout of the COVID-19 pandemic.

We will remember 2020, but we will remember it as a time where together we stood up and stood tall. You lent us your hands, your time, and your resources to serve our community and neighbors in need.

We hope that these pages reflect our deepest gratitude to you and all of our partners. Together, we made a difference! While hunger is still a crisis and poses great challenges, your continued support means we can work together to solve hunger in central Alabama.

Brett R. Meredith

CEO, Community Food Bank of Central Alabama

Hunger: Alabama's Hidden Crisis

Hunger looks like a parent skipping meals so their family can eat, seniors on low incomes, or children struggling to learn on empty stomachs. For many families, hunger is the choice between paying for utilities, rent, or feeding their children.

Over 264,000 adults and 85,000 children in central Alabama live in homes without access to adequate food. Additionally, over 35,000 children fall within the meal gap – they do not qualify for federal nutrition aid (SNAP), but they still do not have access to consistent food. In 2020, CFBCA distributed over 21.9 million pounds of food to over 428,400 unique individuals. That's equivalent to 18.25 million meals, or 50,000 meals every day in 2020 to neighbors in our 12-county service area.

It takes a lot of food to serve that many people. We purchase food, accept donations, and we obtain food from the USDA directly. We also have relationships with local grocery stores around the state, participating in a collaborative food recovery initiative that annually saves an average of over 7 million pounds of produce, proteins, and dry goods from being discarded. This year, we recovered over $12 million worth of food.

The Community Food Bank of Central Alabama (CFBCA) feeds people in need today and fosters collaborative solutions to end hunger tomorrow. We accomplish our mission by providing food to over 255 partner agencies including food pantries, shelters, and children's programs, who offer direct service to our neighbors in need. To fill the gaps, both geographically and demographically, we offer programs to specifically serve vulnerable populations.

Volunteers

Volunteers play a critical role in carrying out essential services of the Community Food Bank. Our volunteers help us in significant ways: sorting donated product, building food boxes, serving the community at Mobile Pantries, and assisting in our front office.

Volunteers are also of the greatest importance at Mobile Pantry and Family Market distributions throughout our 12-county area, as well as at our Partner Agencies.

We had to re-configure many of our traditional volunteer operations in mid-March, suspending our program until we had a safety plan in place. We are grateful for our volunteers' commitment to our mission, especially those who found a way to do so in the midst of the pandemic.

Senior Meals & SNAP Outreach

Alabama reports the second highest prevalence of food insecurity among seniors (12.8%) in the country.*

We address senior hunger by providing special food boxes geared toward senior-specific health needs, through 18 partner agencies and 25 distribution sites. Some sites have special senior-only distributions or deliver to the home-bound. In 2020, this program served 372,396 meals to 1,623 unduplicated individuals.

We serve these seniors in partnership with the Alabama Department of Education and USDA. Together, we administer the Commodities Supplemental Food Program (CSFP).

In addition, our Benefits Enrollment Center helps eligible low-income seniors and people with disabilities find and enroll in benefits programs. Our SNAP Outreach Coordinator helps seniors navigate the application process and to determine qualifying benefits. Over the past year, there were 548 applicants in our 12-county service area, which translates to 445,305 meals provided through SNAP benefits.

*According to Feeding America's most recent State of Senior Hunger in America study.

how we work: at a glance

1 CFBCA operates as a food distribution center. We receive products from several food industry sources, as well as excess food reclaimed from local grocery stores and community donations.

2 Food is delivered to, sorted, and stored at the CFBCA warehouse. Volunteers and staff sort food, pack program boxes, and check for quality control.

3 CFBCA distributes the food to more than 255 nonprofits in the community who act as our agency partners. These partners then distribute it to the community free of charge.

While CFBCA does not distribute food directly from our facility, we operate several consistent public food distributions and meal programs to ensure that the needs of especially vulnerable populations are met.

Individuals Served at Mobile Pantries over Prior Year

Mobile Pantries

Our Mobile Pantry program makes healthy food accessible by bringing food pantries directly to areas of need. Each household that attends receives nutritious and varied food to feed a family of 4 for 10 days.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, we primarily shifted focus to our Mobile Pantries, which is both the safest and most efficient way to get food to the community. These distributions are contact-free, drive-thru food opportunities, and there is no income requirement or identification needed due to relaxed USDA guidelines.

Prior to the pandemic in 2020, we operated 4 monthly recurring Mobile Pantries. To respond to the community's needs, we quickly added 6 more regular monthly distributions along with one-time distributions (COVID-19 Relief Distributions) throughout several counties to address the increase in demand for services. Each of these one-time distributions served between 300 & 1,500 households.

The expansion of the Mobile Pantry program in 2020 is unparallelled. In 2019, we served 4,408 unique individuals. In 2020, we served 130,420, a 2,859% increase over the prior year.

In 2020, the Mobile Pantry program served 3,519,189 meals to 130,420 unduplicated individuals at 431 distributions. Included in those numbers is the USDA Farmers to Families program for COVID-19 relief, which served 124,977 unduplicated individuals 3,211,269 meals.

Children's Outreach: The Family Market

Due to the pandemic, our programs serving children and families looked markedly different. Schools were closed, and summer programs were suspended, so the Community Food Bank changed tactics. We began to hold more Family Markets as well as Mobile Pantries that exclusively served households with children.

Family Markets are mobile food pantries specifically for families with school age children, typically held at elementary schools. This program delivers fresh fruits, vegetables, and other staples in a 'just in time' model – food is delivered and distributed the same day. Our Family Market program continued, and expanded, during the interruption in regular school schedules caused by the pandemic.

Even with school partners closed, we dramatically increased service to households with children – we served 566,088 meals to 9,402 unduplicated children and their families at 105 distributions. That's a 52% increase in meals, and a 112% increase in unique individuals over prior year.

Though the Summer Meals Program was paused due to the pandemic, we served 3,427 unduplicated children through our summer Family Markets. That is over twice as many children served than the prior year.

Disaster Relief

During times of crisis, the Community Food Bank is ready to step in and provide emergency assistance when and where it is needed most. Often, our role is to support the community for the long term. We largely offer assistance in the months following a disaster, after the first responders and one-time donations are gone. It's in those times that we most often step in – when the community as a whole is still struggling and help is sparse.

Typically, we provide emergency food and water in times of disaster like tornadoes or floods, establish temporary emergency food pantries in affected communities, and work with our agency partners to support the community. We work in concert with the Emergency Management Association (EMA) to help when and where it is most needed.

This year, we saw that our food bank can mobilize disaster response on a scale we have never seen before, with endurance we didn't know was possible. By the end of 2020, we served 383 COVID-19 Relief distributions, the longest continued disaster response we have seen.

Partner Agencies

Across our 12-county footprint, we partner with over 255 agencies (including soup kitchens, shelters, church food pantries, children's programs, and veterans' programs) to get food into the hands of our neighbors.

This network of Partner Agencies enables existing nonprofits to reach more people. We supply the food and provide food safety training, and they distribute it, free of charge, to our neighbors in need.

We supply various types of foods including meats, canned goods, fruits, vegetables, bread, rice, etc. for pick-up and delivery to the agencies. Agencies participate in a "cost-sharing" fee to assist with freight, storage, and sourcing expenses. Fresh produce, bread, and other items are available with no cost-sharing fee. In 2020, we provided 12.4 million pounds food to partner agencies with no cost-sharing fee.
